SYRIA            Maher Arar (m), Canadian/Syrian national

On 5 October 2003, Maher Arar was released by the Syrian authorities, after being held in detention without charge for a year. He was handed over to the Canadian Consulate in Damascus, before being flown home to Canada on 6 October, where he was reunited with his family.

Maher Arar, who holds dual Syrian and Canadian nationality, was deported from the US via Jordan in October 2002 reportedly accused of having links with alleged terrorist groups. He was then held at a secret location in Syria and reportedly tortured and ill-treated, whilst being denied access to his family and lawyers.

Many thanks to all those who sent appeals. If possible please send a final round of appeals in English, Arabic or French, or your own language:

- acknowledging the release of Maher Arar, but expressing concern at his detention without charge, at a secret location for over a year;
- calling on the authorities to explain the reason(s) for his detention;
- asking for an independent and thorough investigation into the circumstances surrounding his arrest and into the reports that he was tortured and ill-treated.
